Conversations Beyond Proof of Heaven

With Eben Alexander, MD, and Raymond A. Moody, Jr., MD, PhD

Is there life beyond this life? If we all knew our life on planet Earth is just one in a series of many lives, what would we do differently? What implications does this knowledge have on the everyday, the economy, and the world as we know it? Join filmmaker David Hinshaw as he documents the exploration of these questions and more in a dialogue between Dr. Eben Alexander and Dr. Raymond Moody. Set against the backdrop of Dr. Alexander's Virginia home and contextualized by his own passionately recounted experience of being brain dead for a week—a near-death experience unlike any other ever detailed—the film invites you to become a part of the conversation.

What the "Bleep" Do We Know!?

What the Bleep Do We Know? blends a fictional story line, documentary-style discussion, and computer animation to present a viewpoint of the physical universe and human life within it, with connections to neuroscience and quantum physics. Some ideas discussed in the film are: The universe is best seen as constructed from thought (or ideas) rather than from substance; What has long been considered "empty space" is anything but empty; Our beliefs about who we are and what is real are not simply observations, but rather form ourselves and our realities.
